COMMISSIONERS OF WEBER COUNTY MEET

State Engineer Wants County Officials to Measure Streams.

special to The Tribune. OGDEN, Jan. El.-At the regular weekly neeting of the Board of County Commissioners today a communication was received from State Engineer Caleb Tanner, orging upon the board the necessity of a closer relationship between Water Commissioners of each county and the office of the State engineer. His recommendations were that County Water Commissioners be provided by the county with water meters and that they be required to take measurements of the streams in the respective counties at different periods in the year. His argument was that these commissioners would become proficient in the measurement of waters and would thus become available for appointments as water supervisors under the law of 196. He further urged that such a departure would forward the solution of the Weber irrigation project.
The matter was taken under advisement
by the board

The matter was referred to the road supervisors and sheepmen not interested in the cases.

TELLS STORY OF GRAVE UNDER ICE

Man Who Was Caught in Awful Slide at Alta Recounts His Struggle.

FOUGHT FOR HOURS TO SAVE MEN'S LIVES

Bodies of Five Victims Are in City Morgues Awaiting Burial.

'How does it feel to be buried under five feet of snow that is packed by tremendous pressure until it reaches the weight and consistency of ice?"

Not many men have lived after passing through an experience that fits them to answer that question, but Ross Arm-burst, proprietor of the saleon that was swept away Saturday morning by the snowslide that brought death to six men, told the story Monday night to a Tribune man.

Was Awful Experience.

Without boasting or affectation, in the plain and simple language of a man whose life has been spent in Western mining camps, who has indifferently faced a thousand dangers, Mr. Armburst gave the recital of that awful night.

"It was tough, all right. I was sleeping on my face, which I think was all that saved my life. The first thing I knew I was struggling for breath and a heavy door was pressing down on my knew I was struggling for breath and a heavy door was pressing down on my back. I am pretty stout, but it took me at least half an hour to struggle through the snow under which I was buried. It was packed until it was almost as solid as a cake of ice. As soon as I got my head into the sir i began to dig for the other boys. I had nothing on but an undershirt and it was storming so that you could not see your hand before your face, but you can't stop to think of those things in a time like that.

Reached One in Time. Reached One in Time

"It's hard to judge time under such cir-cumstances, but I should say it was half an hour more before I got to Herrick. He was black in the face and unconselous, but he came to after a few min-utes working over him. Herrick, Mur-phy and Gray were all sleeping on the same bed, but Herrick was saved by be-ing thrown under a card table that gave him a little space for air. Gray Dead When Found.

"Then we started to dig for Gray and Murphy. Herrick said that he had heard one of them signalling to him some time before. We got to Gray in another hour, but it was too late. We had no matches and no protection except our night clothes. For two or three hours more we fought for our lives in the storm, while doing all in our power to find the men whom we knew were buried in the silde." slide.

All Worked Bravely.

Toward daylight, after more than four hours of exposure, Mr. Armburst was able to make his way to the Columbus boarding-house and arouse the men, although he did this at the risk of his life, clad as he was only in night garments. With characteristic bravery and spirit the miners turned out to a man and all worked without cessation until all the bodies were recovered.

Victims Brought to City

Victims Brought to City.

With the exception of William Powell, who will be buried from the Sandy meeting-house. Wednesday, afternoon at 2 o'clock, the bodies of the victims were brought to this city Monday. Those of George Claybourne, John Erickson, and John Gray were taken to Evans's undertaking pariors, the remains of Albert Bennett and Jerry Murphy being at O'Donnell's.

Claybourne Funeral Wednesday. Funeral services for George Claybourne, who has a brother and other relatives re-siding here, will be held from the chapel of the undertaker Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and all friends of the dead miner are invited.

Held Waiting Advices. The bodies of John Erickson, Albert Bennett and Jerry Murphy are held pend-ing funeral arrangements not yet com-plete. It was stated last night that Benpiete. It was stated hist hight that Ben-nett's remains would probably be shipped to Santaquin, Utah. Erickson is known to have bad relatives in Michigan and an effort's being made to locate them. The undertakers could not last night state as to what arrangements would be made for the other funerals.

Breaking Trail to Camp.

It is probable that by tonight the trail will be broken by wagon clear through to the camp. Six teams Monday made their way as far as the Columbus Consolidated mill, but decided to rest there for the night and complete the difficult task on Tuesday. Veteran miners of the camp who came down Monday say that there is no further danger of sides, for, as they put it: "Everything that can slide has already slid.

ADVANCEMENT OF COLORED WOMEN

Mrs. Booker T. Washington Delivers Fine Address on This Subject.

In the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. Monday evening, before a large and enthuslastic audience, Mrs. Booker T. Washington of Tuskegee, Ala., delivered a splendid address on "The Advancement of Colored Women" Many of the prominent people of the city attended the meeting and were interested auditors to the instructive problem which the noted exponent of the colored race advanced. Mrs. Washington spoke, in part, as follows:

Mrs. Washington's Address.

Mrs. Washington's Address.

"There are two million six hundred thousand adult women lilliterates in this country," says a recent Southern writer. To be sure this does not mean that all of these women-mothers of our boasted American civilization, are Americans of color, but it does signify that a very large majority of this number belong to what some people call the "Child" rane. As long as this state of things exists, there will lie sors need of help in the form of time, strength and patience. I say patience because I sometimes fear that many people who were one time interested in the advancement of colored people, have grown impatient. They do not regard the strides made by us sufficiently rapid ones. They want to see us do in thirty or forty years what the rest of the people of our country have taken hundreds of years to do. They imagins that we ought to be more capable than other races and why slimply because they do not stop to think of what we have had, and still have, and shall have, for years to overcome.

Interested in Entire Race.

Interested in Entire Race.

My interest is in the race at large, men, women and children, for all of us must somehow paid up together; but I am here tonight to speak respecially for that part of the race to which I belong, the woman, the mother, the one who more than any other is held accountable for the rearing, the honest development of the child, the citizen, the father, and mother of the coming generations, the mother living in these days when more is expected of us and rightly so.

For Better Education.

The census each year brings to us informa-tion that testifies to the gain in the life and activities of the colored population and of colored women especially. In the hast census 1,695,744 colored youths attended our schools over the country, $86,767 were young women, 129,231 women attended school from four to five months, and 277,546 women attended school six months more.

Hundred Public High Schools.

There are a hundred public High schools for colored young people. The census shows the enrollment of 2659 women in elementary grades, and in secondary grades, 1935 women. In these schools 154 women are enrolled in the business course. In the industrial training courses there were 759 women and 161 women graduated in 1930 and 1231 from the High school course proper.

course proper.

In the accordary and higher schools of the race, there were 13.9% women, 7283 women in the secondary grades, 740 women in the collegiate courses. In secondary and higher schools, there were 17,135 colored students receiving the industrial training of whom 11,-

Schools Increasing.

Our schools are increasing every year, and the number of trained colored women is steadily and surely growing larger, and just in proportion as the women who have last advantages of time and money and heritage some up, so shall we also come up. We want our friends to trust us, to stand by us yet a little longer, to feel that we shall by our work for others of all races, in part, at least, repay them for their confidence in us.

The speaker then gave several instances of the work and the education of a number of colored women in the South, the conditions of which she was entirely familiar with.

Starts Colored Women Rising.

In city and country the status of our women is rishing. Compare yesterday with today we thank God for the advancement. The efforts of our young, sell-trained women are making for the advancement of those who have been without educational privileges and slowly but surely the good work is radiating. Especially is this true as seen in the improved home life where good seed has been sewn. Women Doctors.

Better knowledge of the laws of health is disseminated by the thirty-five women doctors who are actively engaged in a warfare with the inherited weaknesses of the race. Four hundred and twenty eight nurses have joined the raises of workers, and I feel that the the ranks of workers, and I feel that the needs of the rare are in a measure being met, with better homes, skilled physicians and nurses, who, in their relation to the homes and the mothers of the race will sid materially in the development of sound bodies it for the ind wolling of a better soul. Advancement Assured.

The advancement of the women of the black race of America is assured. By the tremendous educative influences of the twentieth century, an epoch will soon be reached in the history of the black race of America that will be marked by the advancement of its women to the highest plane, and a consequent uplift of the masses of an outcast people.

SENATOR CLAY GIVES WARNING

Intimates Choice Necessary Between Rate Reform and Public Ownership.

THINKS CONGRESS CAN DELEGATE ITS POWERS

Nothing Wrong in Commission Determining What Is a Just Rate.

WASHINGTON, Jan 23.-The question of regulating railroad rates occupied practically all of the time of the Senate today, notwithstanding that no bill with that end in view has been reported from the Interstate Commerce committee. The discussion of the subject was in connection with Mr. Clay's speech, Messrs. Aldrich, Foraker, Bailey and Newlands being the principal participants in addition to Mr. Clay, himself.

Refers to Hearst's Vote.

Mr. Clay advocated the passage of a bill which would give the Interstate Commerce commission power to regulate rates when complained of and said if there was no legislation along that line, the country might count upon agitation of the question of Government ownership. In that connection he referred to the large vote given Mr. Hearst in the late New York municipal election as an indication of the popularity of municipal ownership of the public utilities.

Aldrich Makes Prediction.

Aldrich Makes Prediction.

Mr. Aldrich Indicated a purpose to oppose such legislation as that outlined and declared that Mr. Hearst was the author of the proposition to confer the rate-making power on the commission. He also took occasion to declare that the signs of the times point to the naming of either Mr. Hearst or Mr. Bryan as the next Democratic presidential candidate, but when pressed to indicate the probabilities in the Republican party he declined to make a prediction and also avoided angwering a query of Mr. Bailey as to whether the President would be a candidate for a third term.

Platt and Depew Present.

Platt and Depew Present.

Senators Platt and Depew were in their seats when the Senate convened today, the first appearance of either one for some time.

Both were given warm welcomes and were heartily congratulated upon their appearance of being in good health.

At the conclusion of the morning business Mr. Clay addressed the Senate on his resolution relating to the governmental power to fix maximum freight charges tal power to fix maximum freight charges Takes Issue With Foraker.

Mr. Clay supported the proposition that the Interstate Commerce commission should be permitted to regulate railroad rates. He contended that the railroad companies should not be interfered with in the first instance in preparing their schedules, but said that when these are once promulgated there should be a body with authority to modify and revise upon complaint.

with authority to modify and revise upon complaint.

He took isse with statements made earlier in the session by Mr. Foraker in opposition to the constitutional right of Congress to delegate its authority to regulate interstate commerce, saying that on account of the vast number of complaints liable to arise it would be impossible for Congress with its other pressing business to give anything like adequate attention to them. Mr. Clay added:

Congress Couldn't Do It.

of this number are females. These women live in all parts of the country, all the way from Maine to Mississippi, on plantations, in the smaller towns, in our great cities Many of these are intelligent, many more are ignorant. Some are well off in this world's goods, some are exceedingly destitute, some so beyond our conception.

Congress Couldn't Do It.

"If Congress should remain in session from year to year, devoting its entire time to this work, it would be impossible to pass upon one-twentieth of these various complaints filed by the American shippers against the different railroad systems of our country. I repeat, if Congress cannot pass an act providing that all interstate rates shall be reasonable and just, thus fixing a standard and delegating to the commission the power to hear the facts and carry out the legislative will of Congress, then the American people are at the mercy of the railroads."

Friend to Railroads. Congress Couldn't Do It.

He declared himself a friend of the rail He declared himseif a friend of the rali-roads, but said that because of their pub-lic character it is proper that "they should be compelled to furnish to the public transportation of persons and property that is both reasonable and just, and power ought to be lodged in an impar-tial intelligent and broad-minded trib-unal to pass upon the differences between the railroads and the shippers and ren-der substantial justice to both.

Sees No Other Way

Sees No Other Way. "And" he added, "if Congress cannot exercise this power through a commission, then I am at a loss to know how the people can expect proper relief."

He declared that the laws granting authority to State commissions to revise rates so as to insure justice had been frequently upheld by the courts.

What Courts Have Held.

"In these very cases," he went on, "It was claimed that the legislative power must be exercised by the Legislature itself and could not be delegated to any other body, but the courts have uniformly held that where the Legislature enacted that rates shall be reasonable and just, the duty of executing this law of finding what rates are reasonable and just may be delegated to a commission and that a grant of such power is not a delegation of legislative authority.

Must Delegate Power.

"If such laws, enacted by the Legislatures of different States have been sustained as reasonable, why cannot Congress enact that all interstate freight rates shall be reasonable and just and leave to the interstate Commerce commission the right and power to investigate and find out what rate will be a proper one, what rate will be fust and impartial, as between the shippers and the roads."

After quoting many decisions in such impartial as between the snappers and the roads?"

After quoting many decisions in support of his contention, Mr. Clay analyzed the law and said that it does not afford adequate protection to the shippers. He said:

"Railroads can destroy towns, cities and private industries by improper rates, and who will say that power should not be lodged somewhere to investigate intelligently all complaints, solely with a view of doing justice between the roads and the shippers? The presumption is that an intelligent, broad-minded commission

Sensational Scene.

There was a sensational scene in the convention today which was an echo of the attack made on John Mitchell by Robert Randall of Dietz, Wyo, in last year's convention Randall charged Mitchell at that time with having sold out the miners in the Colorado strike and Mitchell made reply branding the statement as a lie Randall was expelled from the organization as a result.

Heywood Makes Denial

Heywood Makes Denial.

Today a delegate named A. F. Germer of Mount Olive. Ill., made the charge that some of Randall's statements were correct last year. He presented a letter from Secretary Heywood of the Western Federation of Miners, in which Heywood denied the statement made in Mitchell's address of Saturday that Western Federation members were taking the places of the United Mine Workers on strike.

Mitchell Cites Cases Mitchell Cites Cases. Mr. Mitchell made reply to this in a very heated statement, denouncing Randall's speech last year, branding Heywood's statements as false and citing the places where Western Federation miners had taken the strikers' places. He named several places in Colorado and cited districts 2 and 14 and parts of Washington State.

State.

President Mitchell again referred to the charge that he had sold out the Colorado strike and was strong in his denunciation of those making the charge. He was loudly cheered.

Defends Civic Federation. Defends Civic Federation.

Mr. Mitchell said the association he had with the members of the Civic Federation had always been turned to the advantage of the United Mine Workers of America. He had not committed the organization to anything. The Civic Federation was composed of twelve honorable gentiemen, themselves employers of union labor. The cardinal principle of the Civic Federation, he said, was to maintain friendly relations with organized labor. The Civic Federation had favored the trade agreement and in recognizing the trade agreement had recognized organized labor.

"True," said he, "it has men like Mr. Elliott, but if we all thought alike there would be no organized labor and no mine workers organization. There would be workers organization refer would be no necessity for them."

John H Walker, a Socialist leader, was recognized by Mr. Mitchell. He said the argument was tending to widen the breach between the Mine Workers and the Western Federation of Miners, He crewed harmony.

Why presume that narrow-minded partisans, easily influenced by public clamor, will be appointed to discharge this duty? It will not be a difficult task to secure honest, intelligent, upright men to perform this work, and no other kind ought to be appointed."

Air Ciay hinted at a possibility of an agitation of the question of Government ownership of railroads if attention is not given to the demand for regulation, saying:

Possible Government Ownership Possible Government ownership.

The sentiment has been growing in favor of Government ownership. Mr. Hearst came within a few thousand votes of being elected Mayor of the city of New York in the last election. I have never been a follower of Mr. Hearst. Who had the remotest idea of the strong following which he developed in that race. It was not the made his race—Government ownership.

'I do not believe in Government ownership of railroads. I recognize the fact that the vast number of employees engaged in the work of operating and building these roads would be largely under the influence of the party in power in controlling the Government. Such power would enable the party in control of the Government to hold it for all time to come The only way to turn public attention from the public control is Government regulation by law."
